Wilson's Plover

Charadrius wilsonia

hypothetical, unsubstantiated

Wilson's Plovers breed in the southeastern United States and throughout Mexico to northern South America, with populations migrating to some extent, and vagrants recorded north to central California and southern Canada (AOU 1998, CBRC 2007). One reported 12-13 September 2000 from Tern Island, French Frigate was well described but the description failed to consider or eliminate Greater Sand-Plover (C. leschenaultii), one of which turned up the following January in California (CBRC 2007). Could it have been the same individual Greater Sand-Plover (cf. Abbott et al. 2001)?
